"Pressestimmen A powerful celebration of common humanity and compassion . . . deserves to be read widely by people of all faiths and none. (Sunday Times)Full of brave questions and wisdomAn act of braveryCreates hope (New York Times)A gentle, cautious work, which addresses thorny questions with a parent's compassion and a diplomat's delicate tread. (Harper's)Ghobash encourages a search for nuance in a world consumed with a polarizing, partisan us-versus-them mentality. (Slate)Thoughtful reflections by a Muslim diplomat about questions of faith, culture, and modernity.A timely and incisive book about the hopes and aspirations of Muslims beyond the headlines that have shaped Western attitudes towards Islam . . . A must read for Muslims and non-MuslimsBeautifully written letters . . . A must read for anyone who wants to take the pulse of a crucial region of our world. Refreshing and effortless reading, filled with hope.A rare treat in that it is intensely human whilst, at the same time, being an important work of philosophy, religion and life. Werbetext From the Ambassador of the UAE to Russia comes a bold and intimate exploration of what it means to be a Muslim in the twenty-first century. Alle Produktbeschreibungen".
