"Recensione 'This spectrum of a book examines 30 shades and charts of their colour range, cultural associations and examples of use in design. A sourcebook for those looking to experiment with vibrant tones.' --Homes & Antiques'[It] is the poet's answer to Pantone reference books. The fact that 'butter' is the first reference on the contents page gives a sense of what to expect: Sean Adam's approach, though functional, is also about a form of chromatic storytelling. [...] For a practising designer, the book will be both liberating and frustrating in equal measure.' --Aesthetica Magazine'You're going to learn how Danne & Blackburn's Nasa letterform logo from 1974 uses red to evoke a sense of active kinetic energy and reference the future-oriented nature of the organisation, and how the famous hot pink Cadillac of 59 was a meaningful attempt to drag the States from the drabness of the postwar years. And then, finally, you will give colour the damn attention Adams knows it deserves.' --Shortlist L'autore Sean Adams is a founding partner of the award-winning California design firm AdamsMorioka and has been cited as one of the 40 most important people shaping design internationally. A former AIGA national board member and president of AIGA Los Angeles, he teaches at ArtCenter College of Design and is a frequent lecturer and competition judge. Sean is the coauthor of Logo Design Workbook and Color Design Workbook and author of the series Masters of Design. He lives and works in Los Angeles."
