"L'autore Olivia Higgins applies her teaching and advocacy skills to help educators increase their ability to support and welcome people of all genders and sexualities. Since 2001, Olivia has taught hundreds of preschool through 12th grade students, trained thousands of professionals, and provided extensive services to San Francisco, Alameda, and Oakland Unified School Districts. In 2013, Olivia founded Queerly Elementary to meet the growing demand for her services. Olivia wrote Stonewall: Our March Continues so young people can learn about this historic civil rights event and, perhaps, even inspire a few readers to advocate for a social justice cause dear to them. Olivia lives in California with her wife, their two children, and their very spoiled dog, Ozzy. Tess Marie Vosevich Keller was born in rural Northern CA. She became engaged in art at a young age and went on to Art school at Pacific Northwest College of art in Portland CA. Ultimately she graduated with a BA in studio arts from Humboldt State University. She moved to Oakland in 2012 where she is part of LBGTQI communities, artist communities, and political activism. She lives in a communal house with her dog, and attends Grad school at USF, studying psychotherapy in a program dedicated to social justice. With over 15 years of experience in creative direction, photo art direction and design management. Tara has in-depth knowledge of the creative process from concept to final production. She is a collaborative leader who knows how to guide a creative team to deliver extraordinary results."
